and schizophrenia. A recent team has concluded that schizophrenia is influenced by genetic factors, familial loading, and endocrinal factors. The first study of cranial base morphology in patients with the premutation for a CGG microsatellite repeat showed a significant decrease in skull base angle, an increase in gonion-gnathion-nasion distance, and higher anterior lower face height, skull base depth, and nasal width. Poorly fitting linear regressions between the cranial base angle and ocularity in this group did not occur in healthy controls. Correlations were strongest between the gonion-gnathion-nasion distance and the angle of the skull base in the stable group. The same participants showed similar correlations between the anterior lower face height and the anterior skull base angle. Ocularity and ocularity-face height correlations were significant in the cranial base angle, but only weak in the other dimensions studied. The findings support and complement the conclusions of the recent team./* * Renjin : JVM-based interpreter for the R language for the statistical analysis * Copyright © 2010-2019 BeDataDriven Groep B.V. and contributors * * This program is free software; you can redistribute it and/or modify * it under the terms of the GNU General Public License as published by * the Free Software Foundation; either version 2 of the License, or * (at your option) any later version. * * This program is distributed in the hope that it will be useful, * but WITHOUT ANY WARRANTY; without even the implied warranty of * MERCHANTABILITY or FITNESS FOR A PARTICULAR PURPOSE.
