“Our goal was to leverage that motion capture data and blend it with the player animations that we’ve been developing for the past few years and generate a way for players to feel more connected to the game,” Rob Ryno, Senior Multiplayer Designer on FIFA 18 said. “For example, instead of a player having one animation, they may have three, where one is when he receives the ball, another is when he moves the ball, and the third is when he leaves his last touch to receive the ball and then moves the ball.” Instead of having one animation for each action, players now have three or four animation sets, depending on the situation in the game. To illustrate the new technology, we have taken the footage of James Rodriguez play a game of FUT with Fifa 22 Torrent Download. You’ll notice a key difference in his footwork and movement when looking at the two clips below. “We’ve incorporated all of this technology into the players’ A.I.,” Ryno said. “In other words, if you play as a striker, your sprinting animations will not be the same as if you’re playing as a defender. For example, if you have the ball and are sprinting for the first time, players will have a certain velocity and will be able to run into position. There is a ‘tempo’ to their running as opposed to someone who doesn’t have the ball. “If you have the ball and you’re sprinting and changing direction, people can’t predict where you’re going to go. They have no idea that you’re about to turn. Similarly, they can’t predict if you’re going to be passing or running with the ball. So our A.I. is more aware of where players are going than they are of where you are.” Players can also now make eye contact with each other more often. If a player is looking at you, it not only means he is looking at you, but also that he is worried about you. “And you can read from their eye movements if they are about to pass the ball, which can allow you to split your defenders and support them with two of your players,” he added. There is also a different feel to the way players pass the ball
